Call info	The Eiffel grant program is financed and managed by France's Ministry of Foreign Affairs and International Development (MAEDI). Designed to help French higher education institutions attract the best possible applicants to MSc programs and PhD internship in the face of stiff international competition.
Conditions / Restrictions	The program is designed for foreign nationals. Candidates who hold French citizenship, even if they are also a citizen of another country, are not eligible. Knowledge of French language is requested in level sufficient for the studies. Applicants for master studies may request two additional months for language courses. Grantees must complete 75% of their curriculum in France. Applications are put forward by the French host institutions, which agree to enrol the grantees in the program for which they are selected. The Eiffel program does not cover tuition. Recipients of grants from the French government are exempted from paying the application and registration fees charged by public institutions. An application nominating a student rejected in a previous competition will not be accepted, even if the application was submitted by a different institution or in another field of study. Students who have previously received an Eiffel master's or doctoral scholarship are not eligible to receive another at the master's level. Institutions may nominate

	for a doctoral scholarship a candidate previously awarded a scholarship at the master's level. Master level: Candidates already studying in France are ineligible. Doctoral level: Students enrolled in academic programs abroad have priority over students already in France. Each institution may nominate a maximum of 40 applicants at the master's level. Applicants nominated by more than one institution will be immediately rejected. Applications submitted directly by students or by foreign educational institutions will be rejected.
